Letter From Grant Shellenbarger, Who Recently Went West.

Sunrise, Wyoming, October, 1918.

O. P. Schumann, Grayling, Mich.

Dear Sir:

On my trip from Grayling to this place:

I left Grayling Wednesday, 1:45 a. m. and arrived in Chicago at 7:45 a. m. Stayed over night there, leaving Chicago Thursday, at 9:30 and arrived in Guernsey, Wyoming, eleven o'clock Friday. This latter trip was over the C. B. & Q. railroad. Then there was a wreck on the C. & W., so I stayed in Guernsey all night and went to Sunrise by auto the next forenoon, where I met my niece and her husband. Then we drove twelve miles out over hills and rocks to their home which is a very pleasant place, situated in the hills. This is a very rough part of the country, as compared to our dear old Michigan. The timber here is very scrubby Norway pine. Most of the soil is good where you find any, but you find lots of stone and rock. As I sit here I can look out of the front door and see a pine tree 20 inches through, growing right out of the side of a rock cliff. The cliff is about 8 feet high and stands about 70 feet from the front door.

Sunrise is a small mining town of perhaps five hundred inhabitants. The principal industry is iron and copper, mining, lime stone quarries, oil wells and stock raising.

I like the climate here and the water is good but scarce.

Well I will close with best regards to you and all inquiring friends. I remain as ever,

Grant Shellenbarger, Sunrise, Wyoming. Care of M. T. Miller.

Russian Sturgeon Fisheries.

Sturgeon of various species are especially abundant in Russia, where the sturgeon fisheries are of great value. The fish is eaten when fresh, but is chiefly used in the preserved form, either smoked or salted. More than 10,000 fish are sometimes caught at a single fishing station during the upstream migration, which lasts for a fortnight. The eggs are removed in quantity from the ovaries and separately prepared as "caviare."

WAS BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS

HERBERT FELDHAUSER LAID TO REST.

Was One of Largest Funerals Ever Held in Grayling.

One of the largest funerals that has ever been held in Grayling was that of Herbert H. Feldhauser, which took place last Thursday afternoon. This young man who went to Camp Custer on July 24th was taken ill with influenza the latter part of September and died a week or so later from pneumonia, a sequel of the former. Mr. Feldhauser was ill only about ten days in all and passed away on the evening of October 6th, his mother and brother Sergeant Feldhauser also of Camp Custer were at his bedside at the time.

Herbert H. Feldhauser was born in Crawford county at the farm home where the family have always resided, on November 7, 1891, and at the time of his death was 28 years and 11 months old. He had always lived at home with his parents, spending his entire life on the farm, except for the short interval that he was at the army camp. He was a straight forward young man of a quiet disposition and was liked by everyone, and his death is a sad shock to his parents and other relatives. Besides his parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry Feldhauser, he leaves to mourn his untimely departure, one sister, Mrs. Emma Knibbs, and eight brothers, William G., Edward P., Robert, Rudolph, Charles, Arthur and Clarence, all of whom reside in Crawford county and Sergeant Paul Feldhauser now stationed at Camp Custer.

The remains arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Battle Creek and were taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Freeland, where on Thursday afternoon a brief service was held at 1:30 o'clock. From the Freeland home the funeral cortege went to the I. O. O. F. temple where a large congregation of friends gathered to pay their last respects to the deceased. The procession was several blocks long and was headed by Charles W. Amidon as Officer of the day and the Grayling Citizens band, and following came in line Howard Peterson carrying a large American flag the Boy Scouts carrying flowers, the Crawford county war board, the supervisors and the W. R. C. ladies. At the entrance to the temple, the band played very softly "Nearer my God to thee. As the cortege filed down the aisle of the hall the choir composed of the Mesdames Marius Hanson, T. W. Hanson and J. J. Love and Messrs C. J. Hathaway and P. G. Zalsman sang "America". Mrs. W. E. Smith officiated as accompanist, on the piano. "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. T. W. Hanson, after which Rev. C. E. Doty of the M. E. church gave the opening prayer and immediately after the choir sang "My Jesus as thou wilt."

Rev. Doty gave a brief sketch of the young man's life and delivered a most impressive and inspiring sermon. The khaki-colored casket bearing the remains of the uniformed young man, the top draped with two large American flags was borne to its last resting place, followed by those before mentioned, the school children and several auto loads of relatives and friends. At the cemetery Taps were sounded by Bandmaster E. G. Clark and all that remained of Herbert H. Feldhauser was lowered beneath the flag for which he gave his life. The following pieces of poetry were contributed by some members of the family.

Rest Dear Herbert your work is finished,
And the battle you have won.
But you will wait across the river,
For the loved ones left behind.

Rest Dear Herbert your work on earth is finished,
We will meet on earth no more
But we hope to meet in that blessed harbor,
Where the parting comes no more.

CARDS OF THANKS.
We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our friends for their sympathy and beautiful floral contributions, to Rev. C. E. Doty for his kind words of cheer. The W. R. C. ladies, the old Veterans, the War board and Boy Scouts. To those who participated in rendering the beautiful music both the choir and Citizens band. And especially to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Freeland for their kindness in opening their home to us, during our bereavement the death of our son and brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Feldhauser and family.

PEOPLE VIEW WAR RELICS

GOVERNMENT TRAIN OF FOUR CARS TOURS MICHIGAN.

Early Arrival of Exhibit Found Large Crowd Waiting.

The War-exhibit train that was due here at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, arrived a little passed scheduled time, and was greeted by a large crowd of eager people who came to view the war relics that were to be displayed on this train.

These War exhibit trains have been touring the different parts of the Seventh, Federal reserve district and are now being viewed in each city and large towns in Michigan, where they are making numerous stops daily. The train consisted of three flat cars on which were carried great guns, machine guns, etc. In a box car were carried small exhibits such as German saddle blankets, belts, rifles, hand grenades, helmets, field kits and weapons. All of these were either hanging on the walls of the car, or laid on shelves so they could easily be seen. All were labeled and proved to be very interesting. The people lined up in single file entered the box car and marched around in a systematic manner viewing the relics. At the door of the car a U. S. soldier distributed two circulars, one was an address, "Equal Partners" delivered by Hon. W. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, to the Women Liberty Loan workers at Richmond, Va. The other was a miniature production of a German poster that had been printed in Berlin and appeared in Germany as late as last July. It was divided into sections and the accurate translations were given. This was very interesting.

A speaking campaign took place from one of the flat cars, addresses being made by William Bennett and Hon. Dixon C. Williams, both of Chicago. Mr. Williams is the speaker in charge of the program, representing the Speakers' Bureau of the Liberty Loan organization of Washington. Both these gentlemen gave strong patriotic addresses that were both interesting and inspiring, in the interest of the Fourth Liberty loan. Mr. Williams hammered home some facts which, while not all new to the people of Grayling, were intensely interesting. He took some pretty strong pokes at the pacifists of the country and severely criticized some of the church organizations of Detroit for sending messages to President Wilson asking him to do his utmost in bringing about peace. He asked that the people do not send such messages to the President as the latter was better informed as to conditions and to the progress of the war than most of the people and thus in better position to know what is just the right thing to do.

Ex-President Roosevelt also came up for severe criticism for some of his recent acts or utterances, however the speaker did not state just what these acts were. Harry Pond, one of our local citizens and a conductor on the Michigan Central railroad, came up for a terrific arraignment by Mr. Williams for not buying a Liberty bond. The speaker claimed that Mr. Pond earned a salary of $200 or more a month, owned a six-cylinder car and should buy a bond. The latter was out of the city and could not be interviewed but upon investigation at the Bank of Grayling it was learned that he had purchased bond of the Third Liberty loan. It was not known whether or not he was owner of other bonds. Mr. Pond had been ill more or less all summer and had not worked steadily which possibly may account for his neglect in the purchase of bonds. Whatever he may have to say, since this matter has been made public, we will gladly extend to him the privilege of the press to explain the matter if he desires. There are other railroad employees who have never purchased liberty bonds and one, it is rumored, has made boasts that he will not buy.

The personnel of the Exhibit train including the following other than those above mentioned:—Leroy Heron, Chicago, manager; eleven sailors and seven soldiers of the U. S. as guards for the train. Two American soldiers who had been wounded overseas and have been at the Lakewood, N. J. hospital. They were Priv. William A. Trinkle, Lake Geneva, Wis., and Sergt. Martin O'Donnell of Woburn, Mass. Two French soldiers, both of whom had been decorated by the French War Cross for bravery in action. They were namely, Corporal Jacques Gourney and Private Edwin Grouful.

All together the exhibit and the talks were appreciated by the people of this community, and we are sure that all are grateful for the privilege of viewing the real, sure-enough war relics that were on exhibition—articles that had been in actual service in the war by our own forces or the forces of the enemy.

THOUSANDS PERISH IN TERRIFIC FIRE

MANY TOWNS DESTROYED AND DAMAGE WILL RUN FAR INTO THE MILLIONS.

THOUSANDS MADE HOMELESS

Hundreds of Dead Bodies Lay Along Roads Leading to Duluth and Superior Where They Fell.

St. Paul.—The total of towns partly or entirely wiped out by the Minnesota fire has mounted to 29: Cloquet, Moose Lake, Kettle River, Lawler, Adolph, Munger, Five Corners, Harney, Grand Lake, Maple Grove, Twigg, Barnum, Mathews, Atkinson, French River, Clifton, Carlton, Brookstone, Brevort, Pike Lake, Pine Hill, Kalamazoo, Ronald, Sals, Split Rock, Automba, McGregor, Sturgeon Lake and Warba.

At least more time will be required before accurate estimates of dead, injured and property losses can be made.

The known death list now totals 288.

Taking unverified reports from all districts, the total of dead is estimated at 1,250. In Duluth morgues there are more than 700 bodies; at Moose Lake, 158; at Atlin, 42; at Harney, 32; at Carlton, 18; at Cloquet, 18; at Brevort, 18, and scores of bodies have been taken to small places in the fire-swept area. The recovered dead bodies at all places exceed 600.

With probably 12,000 homeless and without clothing, and with property damage mounting far into millions of dollars, whole sections of northern Wisconsin and Minnesota timber land are smoldering, fire-stricken areas, with only the charred stumps of abandoned, depopulated towns to accustom the general desolation.

Hundreds of dead along roads leading to Duluth and Superior lay where they fell when overtaken by the fire. Twelve thousand homeless and penniless refugees, all in need of medical attention, are in hospitals, churches, schools, private homes and in the army here, while doctors and nurses from surrounding communities attend them.

Nearly every able-bodied man in the city has been conscripted to fight the flames now reported dying away. Reports that the holocaust was caused by enemy agents were circulated. Incendiaries were driven away from a local shipyard when fires in Duluth and Superior were at their height, according to city and state officials.

SOCIALIST MAY BE PREMIER

Looms Up As Possible Successor to Prince Max of Baden.

Amsterdam.—There was a hint from Berlin that Philip Scheidemann, leader of the majority socialists, looms as possible successor to Prince Max of Baden as chancellor.

Scheidemann is mentioned as the only logical choice if Germany is to make good her attempt to show a democratic face to the world.

Well informed observers here suggest Scheidemann will not accept the chancellorship unless the Kaiser first surrenders his autocratic powers. While Scheidemann has generally pursued a pro-government course during the war, it is thought he merely awaited the moment in which he can issue a virtual ultimatum.

His party makes up the bulk of the army.

Private advices from Berlin state the Kaiser is suffering from fits of mental depression bordering on distraction.

A report persists the emperor is resolved to abdicate in favor of his grandson, the 12-year-old son of the crown prince.

SOME FACTS CONCERNING D. W. GRIFFITH'S "HEARTS OF THE WORLD."

At the Opera House Today and Tomorrow Oct. 17-18.

"Hearts of the World" was eighteen months in making.

The production is not in any sense a war play, but a love story of the great war, with the conflict serving as the grim background.

The battle scenes were taken on the battlefields of France by permission with the assistance of the British and French governments.

Mr. Griffith and many of his principal players, including Lillian and Dorothy Gish and Mrs. Gish, mother of the two girls; Robert Harron and George A. Siegmann, were under actual bombardment three times, on one occasion for a period covering four hours.

Mr. Griffith had to wear a steel helmet to protect him from shrapnel and a gas mask to protect his lungs during the taking of many of the stirring scenes. Many of the most striking scenes in the film owe their effects to the remarkable courage of Mr. Griffith and his intrepid cameraman, "Billy" Bitzer, who was with him under fire hundreds of times. Neither Mr. Griffith nor any of his company received injuries other than a slight wound in Mr. Griffith's arm from flying shrapnel.

David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, received Mr. Griffith in private audience in the British cabinet rooms in Downing Street, London. Upon Mr. Griffith's departure, Lloyd George said: "God speed you in your great work and grant that you may accomplish your desires." In the prologue of the story of "Hearts of the World" Lloyd George is seen shaking hands with Mr. Griffith prior to the latter's departure for the French lines.

More than 120,000 feet of film were taken, although only 12,000 feet are used in the production.

David Wark Griffith was the first American ever to set foot in the front line trenches. This was, of course, before the United States entered the war.

There is no papier mache scenery nor any artificial scenery of any kind used in the production; no studio "props," no supernumeraries, no "fakes" or artificialities whatsoever throughout the entire film.

Mr. Griffith describes "Hearts of the World" as "A story of the great war," with the actual conflict itself serving only as the grim background for the unfolding tale of life in a small French village.

The story of "Hearts of the World" was written by M. Maston de Tollignac and translated from the French by Captain Victor Marier. The story is in two parts.

Ice Boxes on Wheels

Refrigerator cars for carrying meat are ice boxes traveling on wheels.

Most people in America would have to go without fresh meat, or would have to pay more for what they could get, if it were not for these traveling ice boxes.

Gustavus F. Swift, the first Swift in the packing industry, saw the need of these traveling ice boxes before others.

He asked the railroads to build them. The railroads refused. They were equipped, and preferred to haul cattle rather than dressed beef.

So Gustavus F. Swift had to make the cars himself. The first one was a box car rigged up to hold ice. Now there are 7,000 Swift refrigerator cars. Each one is as fine an ice box as you have in your home.

Day and night, fair weather and foul, through heat and cold, these 7,000 cars go rolling up and down the country, keeping meat just right, on its way to you.

Thus another phase of Swift & Company's activities has grown to meet a need no one else could or would supply, in way that matched Swift & Company ideas of being useful.

When you see one of these Swift & Company cars in a train, or on a siding, you will be reminded of what is being done for you as the fruit of experience and a desire to serve.

COUNTY AGENTS COLUMN.

Many of our farmers have small fortunes in the shape of muck or peat beds on their farms and never realize a cent from them.

The following from Ezra Levin, specialist in Muck crops, and probably the best authority on muck and peat in the State should receive attention: "Muck may be used for bedding and for an absorbent to a better advantage than straw.

If you buy straw, dried muck or peat can save you the high cost of straw. If you raise grain sell your straw and use peat or muck.

Muck or peat is valuable as a fertilizer used alone on the high land.

Peat or muck is better for horses feet than straw.

Muck or peat is from three to seven times better as an absorbent of liquid than straw and will save all the valuable potash voided by your animals more efficiently than straw.

Muck or peat contains as much nitrogen as barnyard manure, if it is made available in the manure pile.

The Huns are using peat or muck as a source of human and animal food. A peat or muck deposit is a straw stack, stacked by nature.

Straw is worth twelve dollars per ton. Sell it and use muck or peat litter.

Peat or muck is organic matter. Use it as such for replacing poor soils.

Draw it and pile it up under cover where it will dry, then use freely putting it out with the manure pile, and placing it on the land and see how your fertilizer difficulties are made lighter.

I would draw a ton of muck just as far as a ton of straw for THE SAME PRICE."

Farmers should not let up on the selection of seed corn when husking. Save out the ears of good type and hang up to dry where frost will not injure. The prospects are that seed corn is going to be scarce and high priced next spring. Let us see to it that there is plenty of good seed corn saved to serve the wants of every community in these two counties for two years, and of a type that is suitable to this climate.

Certain teachers in the district are procuring litmus paper and having the pupils make soil tests for acid, in the schools. This is a very fine and practical project. In order to make it more interesting if some flower pots were procured and a little limestone, an experiment or demonstration could be made of putting some lime with the soil in one pot and leaving the other without, and in an acid condition. Plant some clover, vetch, or alfalfa seed and watch their progress. These seeds could also be tested by the use of some saucers and blotting paper which is also very interesting and practical education. These demonstrations are just as interesting and useful to the girls as to the boys.

KEEP BABY COMFORTABLE.
There is an old grandmother's saying that "A well baby never cries."

This cannot be accepted literally, of course. Most of the crying of babies can be attributed, however, to discomfort of some sort.

A baby's skin is extremely tender. It is quickly irritated by conditions which would have no effect upon the tougher skin of an adult.

Next time baby cries or frets, examine it carefully for redness and chafing and where ever they are found sprinkle gently with 20 Mule Team Powdered boric. The irritation will subside very quickly and baby will be comfortable again.

20 Mule Team Boric is better for such purposes than the many talcum or baby powders, and less expensive. Your druggist sells 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric.—Adv.

The parlor and dining room were decorated with maple leaves, ferns and yellow and green crepe paper, and were lighted throughout with candles affecting the beautiful shades of the various colored leaves.

Supper was served to the guests at ten o'clock.

Out of town guests were—the groom's father, Mr. Alfred Seidel, and sisters, Mrs. Ida Dicks, Mrs. Lottie Smith; and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Yentsch, all of Redford. Miss Ruth Crozier of Albion, and Miss Mae McDermald of Frederic.

Henry Joseph, the defendant in a case for assault in the Circuit Court, brot on by the American Express company, in which a judgment was rendered by Judge Sharpe in favor of the latter for the amount of $1,843.02, defaulted in the payment and was placed in custody of Sheriff Cody. The amount of the bonds was double the amount of the judgment and Mr. Joseph expressed the desire to have time in which to arrange for the necessary bonds. Together with Sheriff Cody he went to the home of his father, Hyman Joseph, and as the family were about to eat their evening meal, the Sheriff gave him the privilege of eating at home, upon the promise that the bonds would be arranged for immediately after supper.

Apparently Joseph did not intend to be placed in jail and about as soon as the Sheriff had turned his back, he called an auto livery and was soon off for parts unknown. He first went to Walton Junction, but nobody seems to know where he went from there. The trouble between Mr. Joseph and the Express company came about when the former was state agent for Maxotires, and was receiving many express shipments, and at a few times whole car loads came here by express. He was doing a big business but, he says, letting out too much stock on credit soon got him financially involved and troubles began. That there was no criminal intent on the part of Mr. Joseph we fully believe; trying to do a big business on a small capital had its limitations, the outcome of which with Mr. Joseph has gotten him into trouble.

CRAWFORD AND ROSCOMMON FARM BUREAUS HOLD JOINT MEETING AT ROSCOMMON.

At the invitation of County Agent W. F. Johnston of Roscommon the executive committees and Agricultural council of the Crawford and Roscommon farm bureaus and the members of the Boards of supervisors of both counties and representatives of the press, all gathered at Roscommon Tuesday night of this week to enjoy a few hours together, in interest of furthering the work that is being carried on by the farm bureaus.

It was a grand gathering and every community in both counties was represented. Every supervisor of Crawford county was in attendance at the meeting, besides School Commissioner Kalahar of Frederic, Edward Chalker, president of the county farm bureau, and Gilbert Vallad both of Maple Forest, and O. P. Schumann of Grayling. Beaver Creek and South Branch townships were well represented with several farmers present, besides the supervisors of those places.

The meeting was held at the Roscommon hotel, where a luncheon was spread which was greatly enjoyed and made everybody feel happy and comfortable.

Supervisor M. A. Bates of Grayling, was requested to act as toastmaster and he made a most excellent one, and began the evening's talk with an appropriate patriotic address.

W. F. Johnston of Roscommon told of the work of the county agent and of the progress he had made as such agent for Roscommon and Crawford counties. His detailed report was somewhat of a revelation to most of those present and left a very good impression as to the importance of organization among the farmers for their mutual improvement.

Mr. Earl Robinson of Lansing, the assistant State agent of the County agents was the next speaker and he dwelt largely upon the matter of the farmer as a business man.

There were other short and interesting talks by others, among whom were County Agent Quail of Otsego county; School Commissioners Koon of Roscommon and Kalahar of Frederic, Editors Eugene Matheson of Roscommon and O. P. Schumann of Grayling; Mayor Price of Roscommon and several others.

The meeting on the whole was most interesting and surely such men gathered together with a set purpose before them and then go out and put into practice what has been learned, good results are certain to come. And it is well to remember that enthusiasm in speech will amount to considerably less than nothing.

Watches are getting more scarce every day. Hathaway still has a fine line of all kinds of watches to pick from. See him before it is too late.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had backaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness, backaches and backache and nervousness disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine as I can honestly say. I am now a healthy woman, and I am sure that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment."

"Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but get it by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass."

ALL PUPILS IN LIFE'S SCHOOL

Each Day Gives Opportunity to Learn a New Lesson, Even Though End Is Near.

We did not ask to be born and have our names entered in the school of life—but here we are—willing or unwilling pupils, which is it? Are we learning life's lessons cheerfully, gladly, optimistically; or do we chafe and fume and fret and worry? There are so many lessons and life is so short.

Every day our wonder increases at our Father's never-failing goodness; at the discovery of new virtues and powers in some life where they have long been dormant, or in some new beauty of this wonderful world that we had long viewed with unseeing eyes. We need hearing ears and seeing eyes if we would acquire knowledge in the school of life. We need to open our hearts toward every morning and say: "Lord make me teachable today."

"We need grandeur often said to me: 'George, I learn something every day.' Ah! is not every day a fresh page of life? Is it not the charm of life to know that each morning is a door opening into a wonderful field where we have not yet walked; where the flowers of knowledge bloom, and there are new lessons to be learned?—Exchange.

OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK KIDNEY.

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. The applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has a curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for it almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that so many people claim, it fulfills all that is promised in its name. It is a powerful bladder and kidney corrector, cures all urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by postal note. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Suspicious Motives. Nippen—Funny thing about old Tite wood. His wife coaxed him all his son for enough money to go on a vacation. He finally gave her $10 and told her to stay as long as she liked.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

In the matter of wearing mourning for relatives who have given their lives for their country there are two opinions. One is that it is inadvisable to wear black because it depresses other people. We must not ask others to mourn with us, or even remind them of mourning. The other is that a proper respect for the dead almost compels a period of mourning apparel. It is a matter which each one must think out for herself. The Red Cross has adopted a substitute for the usual mourning and the last bulletin of the central division has this to say:

"The American Red Cross will provide the mourning brassards to be worn by relatives of men who have given their lives to their country, according to an announcement made by the war council. These brassards, which are to be used in lieu of general mourning, were suggested and designed by the woman's committee of the council of national defense, the idea being heartily endorsed by President Wilson in a letter he sent to the woman's committee. They will be furnished free to the parents or widows of men who have died in the service and at cost to other members of the family."

"The brassard, which is to be worn on the left sleeve, midway between elbow and shoulder, is a band of black broadcloth or other material three inches wide on the surface of which the regulation military star is embroidered in gold thread. The number of stars on a brassard will denote the extent of the sacrifice made by each family."

"The brassards will be made and distributed by the chapters of the Red Cross working in conjunction with local units of the woman's committee of the council of national defense. An initial supply of materials for the manufacture of the mourning emblems has been purchased by the Red Cross and will be forwarded to the 14 divisions of the organization for distribution through their chapters. It is expected that the first of the brassards will be ready for distribution about the middle of September. A brief statement accompanying the announcement says:

"In adopting this insignia the woman's committee desired that it should never be commercialized, but that it should always be possible for the members of the families of those who have made the supreme sacrifice to prepare for themselves this badge of honor."

For the Fall Bride.

A gift which will remind the little bride who undertakes to furnish a home in wartime that Mr. Hoover has his eye on her, is a bread bag. It is made of sturdy cotton; an unbleached muslin would do well. Into it the scraps of bread left from the table are put and are kept comparatively fresh for use at the next meal or for bread puddings or bread crumbs. The reason for the bag is that bread seems to keep so much better when wrapped in a cloth than when left in the regular box, where it is apt to mold if the box is closed, or dry out if the box is left open. Embroider the word bread, or an outline of a cut loaf on this bag if you are thinking of giving it to some little bride you know.

Chemise Dress.

The chemise dress, if present inclination calls for anything, has come to stay. These new ones for winter hang in severely straight lines from shoulder to hem, and they do not show the additional underskirt with which they were provided last season. Some of them are plaited in fine accordion pleats and others are provided with extra applied and floating panels at the sides of the skirts. As for the belts, they are mostly made of very thin strips of the material from which the gown is constructed, and they are tied loosely to confine the gown in some semblance of a waistline.

Satin Footwear.

High black satin boots, for house wear, are true leather savers. They are really very smart. They have snugly about the ankles and are made with French heels and moderate points. Exposed of black satin also lined, are another autumn specialty in the shoe shops. These are especially pretty for informal house wear in the afternoon.

Hats and Scarfs Join Forces

occasionally during the past summer are run across a turban, or small hat, with a long tulle scarf attached and this scarf was simply an elongation of a puffed drapery of tulle over a crown of flowers. Now that fall is here some of those clever people who think up our headwear was inspired with the happy idea of substituting velvet or velveteen or broadcloth for tulle—and we have a chic and youthful winter hat with a cozy scarf attachment. It is a novelty and becoming. Moreover, the scarf is very practical, and we may see this combination developed in several ways.

The odd and pretty hat in the picture has a narrow brim and side crown covered with supple blue and gray broadcloth in satin. The crown is a puff of blue velvet and the scarf is a puff of blue velvet and the scarf is tucked to the brim at the right back and wraps about the throat, the ends falling—one to the back, over the shoulder. There are two small bent tassels on each end of the scarf.

This coquettish model happens to be made of velvet with broadcloth, but broadcloth or duvetyne would suit even better for it, using either broadcloth or fur for the brim. It has something Tricotee Embroidered.

Tricotee is especially good when it is heavily embroidered, and some of the frocks of this fabric show no ornamentation save embroidery. One, with a draped skirt, long tight sleeves that fit snugly about the wrists, and a bodice with scant fullness, has a very wide girde heavily embroidered with wavy threads—in a slightly darker shade of gray than that of the tricotee. Others show embroidered panels of cabriole on waist and of the rollicking character of the "blue devil" tan in which millinery artists delight and make us wonder that it can be interpreted in so many ways. Rich materials lend it dignity and the same is true of the scarf hat shown above.

On the Brim of Your Hat. Two feet away it was striking, good looking. Any black velvet sash would be with a wide woolen Roman stripe binding about the edge of the brim. A closer inspection proved again how very effective absurdly simple things can be. Mercerized cotton did it. Chinese blue, orange, purple, green and black were used this way: A simple over-and-over stitch made the binding, a solid two inches of the circumference done in the blue, the next in purple, then green, then black; and so on all the way round the hat. A pretty variation of this form of trimming would be to use a blanket stitch instead of the simpler over-and-over. Then straight strands of the cotton might be wrapped round and round the crown to simulate a band.

Hats Large and Small.

While the small hats and those that fit closely to the head continue to be the smartest modes this coming season, there is an equally attractive large hat for the woman who cannot wear a small model, and this type will not lose its favor where it is worn with regard to its individual effectiveness.

Daily Thought.

Girl or Game

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It had got to the point where Steve Mason had to know where he stood—on the deck of a sinking submarine ship or on a flying field preparing to soar among the clouds in a winged machine.

If Hazel Norris said "yes" then it would be aviation; if she replied negatively that meant the plunge. All this about soaring and plunging, you must understand, had to do with Steve's mental state. The war had not yet stretched its steel-sealed arm to America, and Steve was considering neither aerial journeys nor ocean voyages, literally speaking. He was still in Clifton college, a senior, and his favorite form of combat was baseball.

After being with Hazel once on the occasion of a theater party early in his senior year his admiration for her increased to a friendship which became so warm as the time for graduation approached that it finally ceased to be friendship, as far as his feelings were concerned.

Steve reached the "point" mentioned in the first paragraph at the same time his hand found the point of a picket in the fence enclosing the garden of her home. He had met Hazel late that afternoon by an accident, ostensibly. She was not supposed to know that he had lingered a full half-hour near the millinery store where she worked, waiting for her to appear so he could walk nonchalantly toward her and be surprised to meet her.

Steve had no real reason for believing that she cared for him. He was aware that some six or eight students were reported to have proposed to her and been rejected during the last three years, but he was willing to take a chance on being the seventh or the ninth, or even the thirtieth.

Steve knew that his red head and freckles didn't jibe with her creamy complexion and black hair, but he was not to blame for the contrast.

He picked a splinter from the fence, realized he was more nervous than he had been at any time since his initiation into "Tau Beta Chi," dithered desperately for words, then got a grip on himself and let it out with:

"Hazel, I'm not going to beat about the bush. I'm not capable of pouring out sentimental gush and crawling on my knees, but I want to marry you, and I hope this is not so sudden that you can't decide my fate here and now."

She laughed lightly and placed her hand over his as it rested on the fence and replied:

"I'm glad you're not capable of 'sentimental gush,' because I'm rather tired of it myself. I like the way you say about this without moaning or babbling brooks and I'll admit I care a lot for you, but I can't answer you. First I must have proof that you are the kind of fellow I would marry and that you really care as much as you say. But I am not saying 'no'—just remember that."

The next day he received a letter from her. It read:

"Dear Steve—Remembering what you told me yesterday I am giving you a chance to prove your affection. Tomorrow Clifton meets Alton for the state college baseball championship. My cousin, Will Forbes, will pitch for Alton, and in a letter I just received he told me that it means everything for him to win the game, as he expects to try for a professional league."

"Here's your chance to prove that you love me. If the opportunity offers, to miss a ball or strike out at a critical point of the game and you can help Alton to win you surely can prove beyond doubt that you care as you say you do."

The letter stunned poor Steve, with his heart eating itself out for Hazel and the rest of him all wrapped up in the national game. Steve would rather play baseball than anything else in the world except have Hazel for a wife. Then, too, his love for his alma mater was strong, and his regard for honor and fair play was stronger.

"How can she ask such a thing?" he groaned aloud as he sank back in the only rocking chair his apartment of the rooming house afforded. He longed for his pipe, but he was in training.

"I can't do it," he repeated over and over. "It wouldn't be honorable or square; and I simply can't bring myself to it. But Hazel—I can't give her up. She means too much to me even if she does ask impossible—at most impossible—things."

The day of the game turned out bright and clear in spite of Steve's wish that a deluge might visit the diamond. He saw her in the grand stand as he jogged out to center field for

Points in Cooking Cereals.

There are several practical points to remember in cooking cereals. One is that there is more danger of not cooking them enough than of cooking them too much. Uncooked cereal preparations, like cracked wheat and coarse samp, need several hours' cooking, and are often improved by being left on the back of the stove or in the fireless cooker overnight. Cereals partially cooked at the factory, such as the rolled or flake granular preparations, should be cooked fully as long as the directions on the package suggest.

Flavoring is also an important part of cooking cereals. The flavor most commonly added is salt. Such added flavor is perhaps less necessary in some of the ready-to-eat kinds which have been browned at the factory and have thus gained the pleasant flavor which also appears in the crust of bread and cake or in toast, but in the plain-baked cereals or mushes, the careful use of salt in cooking them may make all the difference between an appetizing and an unpalatable dish. A good general rule is one level teaspoonful of salt to each quart of water used in cooking the cereal.

In Sumptuous Egypt. Egypt, notes a correspondent, is enthusiastic for English customs. In the case of visiting cards they are leaving us far behind. I have one before me with the name in the center written in Latin and Arabic characters, and the address below. In the right-hand corner in gilt letters is the Spanish greeting "Felicitades," and in the opposite corner a gilt anchor and chain wreathed with pale blue forget-me-nots. The whole card is bordered with lotuses. Another Egyptian uses quite an English card, with the letters "P. T. O." neatly printed in the lower right-hand corner. On turning the card over one is advised to "Keep smiling."—London Daily Chronicle.

Two men were out and another on third. The Alton catcher advanced to the batter's box, and after two strikes and two balls hit one back of third which the Clifton left fielder came up on, but not fast enough to take it from the air. He picked it up on the bound and by a quick throw to the plate forced the Alton base runner to stay on third; but with this play being enacted the Alton catcher reached second.

The Alton pitcher was next to bat. There was a chance for him to win his own game, and the set of his jaw showed he was determined to do it. Steve, out in center, watched him anxiously as he swung and missed the first ball.

"Hope he doesn't send it out this way," Steve muttered, his mind still troubled by Hazel's request. This wish, however, bore no fruit, for the Alton pitcher knocked the ball high in the air toward center.

Steve, gauging correctly, was that he would not have to move more than a few paces from his tracks to catch the ball. He braced himself and watched the sphere descend. It seemed as if it would never get to him. He held out his hands, cupped for the catch. Some of his teammates, displaying a supreme confidence in him, already had left their positions and were on the way to the bench.

"He's got it!" roared an enthusiast on the bleachers. That boy never misses "em!"

The ball struck Steve's glove, and at the same instant he seemed to see Hazel's face rise before him. The sphere bounded from his hands, and while he chased it frantically, two Alton basemen scored. Steve recovered the ball and threw it to second in time to stop the Alton pitcher, but the ball was broken, with the score 4 to 2 in favor of the enemy. The next batter struck out and it was Clifton's turn at the bat.

The last half of the ninth opened with the talles unchanged. The Clifton captain went among his players pleading with them to "do something for the old school." And they responded. The first man up knocked a sizzling grounder past second and got to the initial base. The one who followed duplicated the feat, back of first, and succeeded in acquiring possession of that sack, while his predecessor landed safely on second.

The next man hit one nearly to the left field fence, and the Alton man holding down that position scurried back and nailed it; but each of the base runners moved up a notch after the catch. Clifton's prospects were good, but her stock declined somewhat when the following batter fouled out.

Steve came to bat. With two men on bases, two out and two scores needed to tie, a more critical period of the game would have been imagined with difficulty. His face was pale, he clutched his bat nervously, his lips trembled. He did not even glance at the grandstand but simply waited for the pitcher—Hazel's cousin and the man whose slipper he had missed to throw the sphere.

A Steve was about to enter an unmovable after the game he heard his name called and saw Hazel coming toward him. She drew him to one side and he motioned for her to leave him.

She opened her mouth to speak, but he got ahead of her with: "Miss Norris, I wish you to understand that I got your letter all right, but I also want you to know that I didn't miss that ball on purpose in the eighth. I love you, just as I said, but I couldn't betray my teammates and my school in such a dishonorable manner."

Her eyes glistened unutterably, and one big tear started down each cheek. There was a remarkable softness in her voice when she said:

"I knew you didn't try to throw the game, Steve. I wouldn't have had you do it for the world. I said you would have to prove that you were the kind of fellow I would marry, and I hope you didn't think I could have a traitor for a husband. If you had thrown the game I would never have spoken to you again. I was almost afraid. I must confess, that you had yielded when you missed that fly, but when you—you knocked that home run in the ninth and redeemed yourself and won the game for Clifton, I just cried—for joy—as I am crying now."

The Flavor Lasts

Kindred Spirits. A well-known society performer volunteered to entertain a roomful of the "Olney Hatch lunatic asylum" and made up a very successful little monologue show, entirely humorous. The audience in the main gave symptoms of being slightly bored, but one highly intelligent maniac saw the whole thing in proper light and, clapping the talented actor on the shoulder, said:

"Glad you come, old fellow. You and I will get along fine. The other dummies here are so dashed dignified. What I say is if a man is mad he shouldn't put on airs about it!"—London Opinion.
